

Kindel Davenport

To change a Kindel from a handsome Davenport to a luxurious, full sized bed, is but the work of a moment. Just a single movement is required taking but a few seconds, time and almost no effort. A convenient Wardrobe of ample size and depth is found directly underneath the seat. A demonstration of the Kindel will convince you. We will be happy to show you.

Our same easy terms applies on this Davenport if you desire.

NEW YORK'S WATER AERATED

Process That Purifies City's Supply
Makes Artistic Effect That Is Striking.

The water supply of New York city is subjected to two aerating processes before it reaches the consumer and after leaving the Catskill regions where it originates. At Ashokan it is aerated and then again at Kensico before it enters the pipes for distribution through the city. The act of treating the water is quite spectacular and is attracting a great number of sightseers. In the center of a beautifully laid out park there is the aerating basin covering three acres and measuring 460 feet in length by 240 in width at the widest part. The floor of this basin is studded with nozzles arranged in rows. There are 1,600 nozzles altogether, and when the aerator is in full operation each spouts a jet of water from fifteen to twenty feet high. The water issues in fan-shaped, whirling fountains, which, owing to the close spacing of the nozzles, intersect and break up the water into a mass of spray. Along the edges of the basin and at the ends of the rows of nozzles there are groups of nozzles, some arranged to project a taller fountain than others, and all being designed to produce a very artistic effect. As the sunlight strikes the spray from these hundreds of fountains it is broken up into rainbows. By breaking up the water into spray it is brought into intimate contact with the air, which will thus oxidize some of its impurities. Aeration is particularly needed in the fall when water, standing in lakes, is liable to acquire an unpleasant taste.

CONCERNING FEATHER BEDS

Bosh—I never had much use for feather beds. I don't consider them healthy.

Josh—Well, I know a man who says he would like to see them all over the country.

Bosh—Indeed! Who is he?

Josh—Why, an inventor of flying machines.

PAINFUL REALIZATION.

"I didn't know what it really meant to support a wife," said Mr. Knagsan.

"No?" said Mr. Kidders.

"Until I looked the word up in the dictionary and found that it also means 'endure'."

WHATEVER THEY ARE.

"I do not claim to be perfect, my dear," said Mr. Taukaway. "I will admit I have my peccadilloes."

"Peck!" sniffed his aggrieved spouse. "Peck! You've got a bushel of 'em."—Kansas City Star.

TOO LATE.

Gabe—A scientist claims to have discovered a formula that will turn iron into gold.

Steve—Carnegie beat him to that discovery a long time ago.

JUST THE KIND.

"A packed jury was very appropriate in that case."

"Why so?"

"Because it was a trunk mystery."

FORCE OF HABIT.

Doctor—I have to report, sir, that you are the father of triplets.

Politician—Impossible! I'll demand a recount.—Puck.

EXACTLY.

"That sensational paper is a scream."

"Of course. Isn't it a yell-oh sheet."

COSTUME FOR THE OCCASION.

He—This is a bank holiday, my dear.

She—Then you ought to wear your check suit.

Weak, Cold Spells.

Wilmington, N. C.—Mrs. Cora L. Ritter, of this place, says: "I used to have headaches, and blind dizzy spells and weak cold spells went all over me. I had different doctors, but they were unable to tell me what was wrong, so I began to take Cardui. I am now all right, in good health, and better than I have been for 10 years." Cardui is a remedy for women, which has been helping sick women for nearly a life time.

You can absolutely rely upon it. Other people have done the testing and you should profit by their experience. Cardui has benefited a million women. Why not you. Begin taking Cardui today.

GERMAN ZEAL FOR OBEYING

The Man in the Street Willingly Helps to Enforce Rules and Regulations.

Taken together with the old influences that still flow from the Prussian spirit of absolutism, the German military training in obedience explains how it has come to pass that Germans are so habituated to what may be described as alertness to inflections of every kind of prescribed regulation.

Enter an empty doorway marked "Exit" or stroll over a bridge on the left-hand pathway, and all the natives will stare at you or take pains to jostle you, so alive and resentful is everyone to the fact that you are overlooking a rule. Leave a door open inside a railway coach and the chance is that an indulgent witness will tell you the regulations prohibit doors being left ajar, or he will report you to the conductor.

Their zeal for obeying, and for seeing that everybody else obeys, would be phenomenal, I think, were it not to be accounted for by the fact of the military discipline the whole population undergoes or is infected by, after having been subjected to a previous course of discipline in the home, the school, the church and by the all-pervading police. — "The American Wife of a German," in the New York Independent.

HAS MUCH FAITH IN IODINE

French Physician Strongly Recommends it for the Treatment of Tuberculosis.

After ten years of experience with the iodine treatment for tuberculosis, Dr. L. Boudreau, in the Journal de Medicine de Bordeaux, strongly recommends it. He prefers the French tincture, which is one part of iodine by weight in twelve of alcohol, to the potassium iodide. In consumption he begins with moderate doses and gradually increases these to the limit of toleration, giving from 100 to 500 drops daily in milk, coffee or diluted wine.

Thus he obtains cures in even grave and advanced cases. He ascribes the benefit to the large increase in the number of leucocytes, especially of the large ones that devour the tubercular bacilli. The iodine also stimulates the secretions of the ductless glands. Doctor Boudreau recommends the treatment especially for tuberculous meningitis, tuberculosis of the kidneys and tuberculous lymphadenitis; also in cases of threatened tuberculosis of the intestines, on which the iodine seems to have a direct germicidal effect.

A FLING AT HIS GIRL.

"Confound that young whippersnapper's insolence!" exclaimed Mr. Portly.

"What's wrong?"

"When I told him he couldn't get around me he said if he should get around me it would be a long walk."

PAW KNOWS EVERYTHING.

Willie—Paw, what is the difference between a political job and an ordinary job?

Paw—You have to work hard to get a political job and you have work hard to hold an ordinary job, my son.

QUICK RETURNS.

"It's surprising what women can do with their tears."

"Indeed it is. Some of them merely irrigate the powder on their cheeks for a few minutes and get any amount of money they want."

MORE LIKE IT.

"The drama in this country is still in its infancy," observed Highbrow.

"I thought it was in its second childhood," replied Lowbrow.

ANOTHER WAY.

"Doctors do not bleed people as they used to."

"Easy to see you haven't been getting any doctors' bills lately."

THE PROPER LOCATION.

"I suppose the birdmen will be having a convention."

"Then they ought to assemble on the Canary islands."

NONE THERE.

"My dear sir, I think your wife needs a little more change."

"Great Scott, doctor, she's got all I have now!"
